

Gentlemen,

This document is being composed on the evening of 02 August 2010 in our room at Beaver Meadows, not too far from Red Feather Lakes, CO. We're sorry we can't take time to hang out with JCC and EJ but responsibilities in NE beckon us homeward tomorrow. And there's our 31st wedding anniversary to celebrate upon our return to Lincoln. We may have our hot dogs and root beer delivered if we're too worn out to cook. At least I don't have to work on the evening of the 4th of August.

Regarding our present location Grinda said. "I wish we could stay here a LONG time." I was in no position to argue as we've been away from responsibilities which tie us down in many ways. OTOH neither of us are talking retirement as we can't afford that option.

Billboard on east side of Broken Bow.

Regarding our current field trip from Lincoln - Alliance - Cheyenne - Red Feather Lakes, here are a few sample images and descriptive text to otherwise illuminate them for you. This is as close to a blog as I care to go right now so deal with it. <g>

A long ways from any large body of water but you have a lovely sandhills view

The road to the Alliance Country Club. Note the secret submarine base at Bronco Lake.

Bruce, as you've got software which will actually open AppleWorks files, you may or may not be subjected to such a document with embedded audio and/ or video files. Consider this your warning in this regard. Likewise for Ed if he wants to find an AppleWorks emulator on his Win box at work that would be just fine. Or use a Mac.

Carhenge, for those who didn't know.

Sunflowers near Kimball, Nebraska.

Wind turbines near Cheyenne, Wyoming.

The Forks, an important landmark northwest of Fort Collins, Colorado.

Our WiFi office, Beaver Meadows restaurant, rural Red Feather Lakes, Colorado.

The view from our balcony at Beaver Meadows.

Beautiful Colorado wildflowers.

Can you bear it?

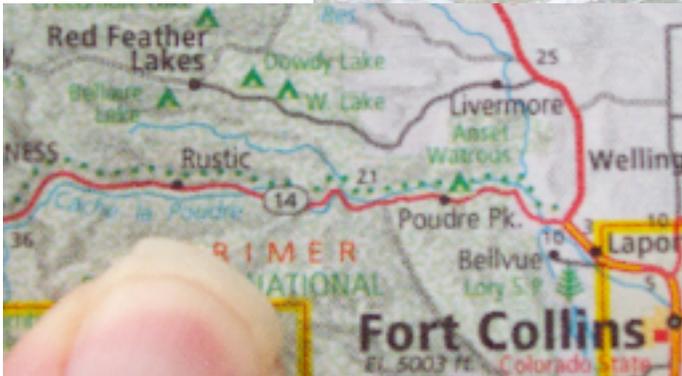

Large brown trout caught
by a nine-year old in five minutes using a worm
and her Barbie pole

It can be done and here's the proof.

You are here.
